Social Entente of America and Europe at New Height

Exchange of Courtesies to Reach Climax With Arrival of Delegates to Armament Conference—Marriages
Play Part in Friendly Relations.

NOT since the armistice has the social entente between America and Europe, and particularly between London, Paris and New York, been more marked than at the present time. During the early autumn incoming steamships have brought to this side of the Atlantic scores of visitors from foreign shores, a majority of whom have close business if not family affiliations with America.

This genial exchange of social courtesies, following closely upon the close of brilliant summer seasons in London and Paris, in which Americans were in the foreground, is to reach its climax with the arrival of delegates to the armament conference, and judging from the plans that are being made New York is to receive the benefit of the better part of the social backwash of the conference in Washington.

Americans, and especially residents of New York with commanding positions in society, are preceding governmental officials to these shores, foreshadowing an intention to make preparations for the social activities that are bound to form important sidelights on the forthcoming inter-allied conference.

Thus far in New York it has been possible to make only one definite arrangement and that is for the annual Aviators' ball on the eve of Armistice Day, with the prospect that several of the delegates to the conference may be able to be present if even for their momentary presence before a midnight departure for Washington. Marshal Poch is one of the delegates who has made known his intention to try to put in an appearance at the ball, which is to be held in the Waldorf-Astoria.

By an international participation in the early season life of New York and by a number of significant international marriages and engagements, this social entente has been made to stand out as the chief present feature of New York society.

The marriage by three ceremonies in Paris on October 8 and 9 of Princess Xenia of Russia, daughter of the Grand Duchess George Mikhailovitch and a member of the former reigning house of Romanoff and of the present Greek royal family circle, to Mr. William B. Leeds, the nineteen-year-old son of the American born Princess Anastasia of Greece, prompted a natural and widespread curiosity over the number of marriages that have taken place between members of the royal houses of Europe and American men or women.

In the modern decades that have been marked by many scores of international weddings, few such family ties have been established and the marriages of the widow of William Bateman Leeds and of her son into the allied Greek and Russian royal families gives them the right of precedence in this marital category. Their matrimonial ties throw them into the most noted of all family circles, the ramifications of which extend into the royal houses of Great Britain, Rumania, Denmark, Norway and Prussia and includes among their family connections the fugitive ex-emperor of Germany, now a sorry figure as a recluse in Holland.

Through a series of odd marital circumstances there have been within the memories of modern society three marriages between American women and the Portuguese branch of the royal house of Bourbon. More than a generation ago a line of Portugal gave up his throne and married an American woman. In very recent times Miss Anita Stewart of New York has become the wife of Prince Miguel of Braganza of the Bourbon line and now lives in her native city with her children. Then there is the widowed Duchess of Oporto, a native of Ohio and long a resident of New York, with three matrimonial experiences in her native land before she married the royal duke.

Next in line among such marriages is that of Miss Elizabeth Reid Rogers, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Reid Rogers of New York, Washington and Jackson, Tenn., to Prince Christian of Hesse in Berlin in January, 1915. The prince is a son of Princess Dowager Augustine of Hesse, born a Princess of Slewig-Holstein-Sonderburg-Glücksburg, and thus a close family connection of the late Empress of Germany and of the Danish royal family. In the record of their marriage in German peerages is this line: "By a marriage not equal by birth." On the day of her marriage this American girl was created in her own right Baroness of Barchfeld, and the small daughter of the Hesse prince and his American born wife is known not as a Princess of Hesse but as a Baroness of Barchfeld. The prince and his wife arrived in this country recently.

To get down to persons of a less lofty social order, residents of this city have in following the routine of social life during the last week come into contact with the Countess of Grosvenor, Viscountess Harcourt, Mrs. W. George Cavendish-Bentley, Brig.-Gen. Sir William Alexander and Lady Alexander, Earl and Countess of Sandwich, Lord Allington and Lady Rodney among the many other members of English families at present in New York.

Mrs. William George Cavendish-Bentley arrived in New York by the Olympic last week, accompanied by her relatives, Viscountess Harcourt, the Countess of Harcourt and Mr. and Mrs. Henry Carnegie Phillips. Mrs. Cavendish-Bentley and the Countess will be guests while in this city of Mr. Ogden Mills, brother-in-law of Mrs. Cavendish-Bentley. The latter and the late Mrs. Ogden Mills were twin sisters and daughters of the late Mrs. Martin Livingston and thus close relatives of the late Mrs. Elbridge T. Gerry. Miss Ruth Livingston, born in 1855, was married to Mr. Mills in 1881, and in the previous year Miss Elizabeth Livingston was married to Mr. Cavendish-Bentley, a member of the noted English family of which the Duke of Portland is the chief and of which the Counts of Benthinck of Holland, closely associated with the present history of the former German Emperor, also are members. Mr. Cavendish-Bentley died in 1909, leaving his wife with two children, Mrs. John Gordon Ford of the British diplomatic service, and Mrs. Walter Burns.

Mr. Burns is a son of the late Walter H. Burns, who was a brother-in-law of the late J. Pierpont Morgan, and his sister is the Viscountess Harcourt. Thus have family ramifications between im-

Halloween Dance to Open Season for the Debutantes

One Hundred Young Women to Be Introduced to Society—Several New Ballrooms Will Be Available for the Coming Out Parties.

ACCORDING to the present outlook it would appear that debutantes will monopolize the entertainments of the coming season, so great is their number. The 1921-22 debutante record will exceed that which ushered in the season immediately following the war, when there were girls to be considered who were not formally introduced during the period of hostilities.

It is estimated that fully one hundred aspirants for social favors will have to be taken into account this season and this number is likely to be augmented. It will be a long season, as Ash Wednesday does not come until March 1. Thus there are to be two full months after January 1 for added entertainments of varied character, some of which will begin the first week in November.

The first general party for debutantes will be the annual All Halloween dance at Tuxedo Park on October 23, and that date will find all the villas in that attractive community filled with young persons, who will have three days of festivities. Several new ballrooms will be available for dances during the winter, the largest of these being that of the new wing of the Plaza, a room of unusual proportions. The name of sherry again will be associated with many entertainments of the year, as the establishment over which the Duke of Portland is the chief and of which the Counts of Benthinck of Holland, closely associated with the present history of the former German Emperor, also are members. Mr. Cavendish-Bentley died in 1909, leaving his wife with two children, Mrs. John Gordon Ford of the British diplomatic service, and Mrs. Walter Burns.

Mr. Burns is a son of the late Walter H. Burns, who was a brother-in-law of the late J. Pierpont Morgan, and his sister is the Viscountess Harcourt. Thus have family ramifications between im-

Among the girls who have been identified with Southampton, who are in line for these attentions of society is Miss Ellen Mackay, second daughter of Mr. Clarence H. Mackay and granddaughter of Mrs. John W. Mackay. Although Miss Mackay will be included at many of the winter's entertainments she intends to take a special course of study at Barnard College. Among her summer associates in Southampton also to be introduced are Miss Elizabeth Kountze, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herman D. Kountze, and Miss Emily Davies, daughter of the late Frederick Martin Davies, who, with her mother, passed part of the summer in Europe, returning early in August. While she was not in Southampton last summer, Miss Lydia George E. Tadman, who will be introduced this winter, has for seasons been identified with that resort. Miss Rosalie Barclay, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry A. Barclay, now living in Short Hills, N. J., belongs to a family that has been identified with Southampton for years. She is a granddaughter of the late

Henry A. Barclay, who many years ago had a place in Lenox, which early in the 90's he gave up in favor of Southampton. She was there last summer with her parents on a visit with her great aunt, Mrs. William Constable, and her great uncle, Mr. James L. Borah. Last winter Miss Barclay and her parents were in Honolulu. Her mother, formerly Miss Rosalie Paul, is the daughter of the late Capt. Paul, U. S. A.

Miss Dorothy Gardiner, who will be introduced during the winter, is the daughter by a former marriage of Mrs. Jacques Cartier, who was Miss Nellie Harjes. Miss Gardiner lived for years in Paris, and while she was in East Hampton last summer a divorcee, she is a member of that family that for generations has been in possession of Gardiner's Island.

Miss Mary Alice Barney, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. Stewart Barney, will be one of the Newport representatives among the debutantes. Her parents had a place in Scotland last summer, although for many seasons they have had a place in Newport. Miss Barney is a great-niece of Mrs. Richard Gambrell and of Mrs. Girard Foster and a granddaughter of the late Alexander Van Rham. Another member of the De Rham family to be introduced is Miss Clara de Rham, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles de Rham and cousin of Miss Marion.

Mrs. Louie Fitzgerald, one of her cousins, Miss Nathalie Reynal, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Nathaniel C. Reynal, also will be formally introduced during the winter. Another of the debutantes will be Miss Harriette Frazer, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Frazer, whose mother was Miss Julia Fish Rogers, a granddaughter of the late Hamilton Fish, who was in the Cabinet of President Grant. Miss Frazer has back of her a line of illustrious ancestors. The Misses Phyllis and Priscilla Baldwin, twin daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Clark Baldwin of Shallow Brook Farm, Mount Kisco, are to be included, as also are Miss Florence Lockwood, a daughter of Mrs. M. L. Lockwood, and Miss Diana Dalziel, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick V. Dalziel. Miss Lockwood is a granddaughter of the late Benoit Lockwood, and one of her cousins who is to be introduced is Miss Mary Bonner Cabot, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Francis H. Cabot. Miss Dalziel's mother, who was Miss Emily Hoffman, was in Africa last winter hunting big game. She is the daughter of the late Mrs. Charles Gouverneur Weir, who passed many summers in Newport, afterward purchasing a place in Southampton.

Westchester county will have among its representatives Miss E. Mary Steers, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Rich Steers, whose country place, Faircroft, in Port Chester, is one of the finest in that section. Miss Steers is a granddaughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. James A. C. Steers and a cousin of Mrs. James B. Taylor, Jr., and of Mrs. John Munroe. She passed a greater part of the summer with her parents in Europe. In travel on the continent and later with them at a shooting box which they leased in Aberdeenshire, Scotland. There will be a Providence debutante who will be introduced here, Miss Mary Hadden, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Hadden. Among her New York friends are Mrs. Frederick W. Vanderbilt and Mrs. Thomas Howard Howland.

Mr. and Mrs. Irving Brokaw of Frost Hill Lodge, Mill Neck, L. I., and this city, will introduce their daughter, Miss Barbara Brokaw, who was abroad with her parents during the summer. She is a granddaughter of Mrs. Isaac V. Brokaw and a niece of Messrs. Howard C. and George T. Brokaw. Miss Rosemary W. Baltz, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry R. Baltz, will be another debutante. She is a niece of Messrs. W. Brenton Welling and Richard W. G. Welling, and was graduated from Miss Chapin's school. Although a student at Bryn Mawr, she will enter into some of the festivities of the winter. Mr. and Mrs. Henry Colwell Beadleston, who were in Europe for the summer, will introduce their daughter, Miss Alice Lee Beadleston, who is a granddaughter of the late Alfred Sotom Post. Two granddaughters of Mrs. Arthur Murray Dodge are to be included among the debutantes. They are Miss Emily Fordyce Dodge, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Murray Jelliffe Dodge, and Miss Josephine Jewell Dodge, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Marshall J. Dodge. They are great-granddaughters of the late Marshall Jewell, one time American Minister to Russia.

March.....Eugene Adagio Pathétique.....Gordon Corcoran.....Grieg. The orchestra consists of approximately seventy-five men, all Symphonists being represented. Mr. Thompson, the soloist, like the orchestra and its members, is a product of America. The choice of these performers was in itself a tribute to the Americanism of Theodore Roosevelt.
